You say to click on the email button but it's hidden. ☐♂☐. At least on mobile.

It's an improvement but not enough. Who is City Hall? Don't you have a CRO or PIO? A job title would be better than a building. The City comes across as so scared of talking to people.

Are you going to disclose all the questions asked and the City answers to them in a red folder? Also specifically identifying who is answering the question? Especially for issues that are on the Council agenda? Do you have a policy on that yet?

You should probably post Q and A as FAQs under each post as you get questions, so you won't have to respond to repetitive questions while actually providing answers to everybody else in real time.

People will probably assume you know what they are talking about but the email button isn't linked to a particular post. You need to think about that.

This is about transparency. And the City has a history of having a real hard time discussing things out in the open.

Exhibit A: the CVRA lawsuit that by the City's own admission this Wednesday will cost us an estimated additional $220,000. Just for the second half of the year.

Talk about stupidity squared.(cubed?) If I had my way, only Shawn and Susan would be on the dais, after that bonehead move of not using the safe harbors. Every other City figured it out, except Camarillo.

The City's motto should be: Email us, call us, visit us, but for heavens sake, let's just keep it between us!

That has to change.

Thank you for your time, Mr. City Hall.

May your foundation be strong.
